Inca Son (meaning “Sound of the Inca”), founded twenty five years ago in Boston, plays the music of its Peruvian Andean homeland. Inca Son has performed around the world at concert halls, schools, museums, folk and world music festivals, and at the 1996 summer and 2002 Olympic Games. Some of its most outstanding concert venues include Carnegie Hall; the Kennedy Center for the Arts, Washington, DC; Smithsonian National Museum of the American Indian; and Boston's Symphony Hall. Inca Son's awards include "Outstanding World Music Act," 1999 Boston Music Awards; 2007 Independent Music Award for "Best World Traditional Song;" 2008 Los Angeles Music Award, "Best World Artist;" 2009 "Gold Star Award," Massachusetts Cultural Council, for Excellence in Public School Residencies; and the 2012 “Peruvian Pride” award, presented in Lima, Peru. With thirteen CD recordings to date and one live concert DVD, all of which speak to the beauty and richness of Andean music and also include compelling original arrangements of popular tunes, Inca Son has become, in the words of one Los Angeles Times music critic "a folk treasure, a true banquet for the eyes and ears...Without leaving the streets of (Los Angeles) I felt transported to the magical world of the Andes Mountains by listening to Inca Son's vibrant strains of pan pipe and strings." Today, with pan pipe, kena, charango, bombo, and guitar, Inca Son will share its musical culture with you. Please feel free to clap along, tap your feet, or sing along to the choruses, if the spirit moves you. We will be announcing all songs.
